MOOD: 😊 Nngh.

MUSIC: The Cowboy humming. Really.

Maybe I'll get to it later today. Right now I'm prepping to go to Q. with Dad and the Cowboy. Job description not unlike everything I was doing in San Diego. Okay, minus the filing cabinet. I hope.

You know that thing dogs do when they think they're in the presence of a threat but not 100% sure? The braced stance, the tail out stiff and immobile? It's a good thing I don't have a tail. Q. does that to me.

 Ometotchtli (<https://Ometotchtli.livejournal.com/>) and  trollcatz (<https://trollcatz.livejournal.com/>), wish you guys were in the office right now. Between the Adorable Overhyped Phone and the computer, I'll be in touch.

So, okay, yeah. Did it come looking for us? Or is this just one of those things that begins with C that Dad claims we don't believe in?

Had to break for jammer chow. (Cowboy: "You've been like this your whole life. How can you forget to eat?" Me: "I don't forget. I put it off." Yes, it's a fucking eating disorder.) Went down to dining hall with Cowboy.

I hate profilers.

He probably loved Q. Or, Jesus, maybe he didn't. Or he did and didn't simultaneously.

ECR. His and mine. Q is too damned much like high school.

It's not an eating disorder. It's a metabolic disorder. And like everybody with a metabolic disorder, sometimes you get frustrated and noncompliant, and then you suffer for it. It's human, Platypus, is all.

SR's notion. Suspected issues with female authority figures. Boys sneak up on better.
